HATS LACE CARDS IN FARCE CONTEST

JANESVILLE TEAM DROPS 6 TO 4 NEAR BALL GAME TO CREAM CITY AGGREGATION.—EXHIBITION A HORROR.

WEEKLY BLOW UP SEEN

Ascension of Cardinals Happens Periodically.—Lots of Boners and Errors Account for Defeat.

Advertised all week as planned to be a baseball game, something took place at the fairgrounds yesterday afternoon, but it wasn't baseball. For two hours and ten minutes eighteen monkeys, nine of them with "Janesville" draped across their chests and the other nine with "United Hats," scratched and clawed each other and "doodle-dooed" for the benefit of a handful of baseball fans who were present to witness anything but a menagerie exhibition. As it was, the supposed to be baseball game between Mike Neuen's Barnhart Hats from Milwaukee and the Janesville Cardinals was anything but one to make a couple of aggregations from a home for the aged turn green with envy.

The spectators met the players(?) coming off the field and learned that they had witnessed a baseball game and that the Hats had won, 6 to 4. The fans knew what the score was, but it wasn't until they were told that they realized that what they had just seen was the great national sport.

It wasn't. It was the consanardest conglomeration of elephant baseball, it smelled so bad that the gallery in the stand thought the Illinois cyclone was waiting breezes in upon them from the Chicago stock yards.

Neither team was any better than the other, but each couldn't have been any worse.

From the Janesville standpoint the biggest trouble was the something the local troopers say was the falling down of Wlosynski, the "Demon Pole" erstwhile. He was away off, and although President Langdon had a new catcher for him, Wlosynski was hit all over the lot. In all he was touched for eleven clean cut blows, and half of them were "regulars," and fit to pass the army test. But the Pole was not all to blame. He had a lot of old women behind him who should have been home knitting socks for soldiers instead of parading around in baseball suits. This aggregation played ball like a tribe of primary kids play one another.

Cole says, "No use paying them pea vine circuit followers good Jack. Home talent could play better'n that—and there wouldn't be a cent more expense either." We agree with him.

The Hats started right off in the first inning. Neuen had his team completely revamped, but he will have to do a little more hustling if his headgear bunch got anywhere with the other nines about the circuit. At that they beat the Cards.

They got three hits off Wlosynski in the first, the first hit being a home run. The usual first inning blowup of the home port Zekes. Hyack and Jackie each got a hit.

Meyers started things off for Janesville and bounced one into deep left for two sacks and scored on Cole's hit which evened up matters for the first stanza. The Hats forged ahead in the second on a couple more hits, some more of the "Janesville stuff" and some fair base running.

Up to the sixth, from the close of the second, the cards settled down like a lot of slugs. They were getting their share of swats off Beaven, but their work on the lanes was worse than the Kaiser's Uboat policy.

The Hats had scored predominately in the fourth. Janesville ivory predominated again. Felsecker hit back of third and went to second when Krueger rolled an easy one to Cole, who relayed to Kingston, who in turn relayed to get Felsecker on a forceout. Kingston muffed it. Hyack hit a pop fly into Goodman at second. He did not have to move a foot. It came down and rested in his glove for about a second and then he let it drop to the ground. It was a terrible muff. The sacks were full then.

Grassi dumbed one back of Lacey, and Felsecker scored. But one was out and it looked as if the Milwaukeeans were en route to make a million. Kingston gathered in on Ott's grounder and threw him out at first. Beaven sent one into the territory back of the judge's stand and Krueger raced across and Beaven took second on the throw home. It still looked serious, but Wlosynski fanned Rieff for the third out.

Weber scored for Janesville in the seventh, after Neel's sacrifice had advanced him to second and Woods had beat out his grounder to first. The Sharkey Grant was sent in as a pinch hitter in place of Lacey. He scratched and reached first. Why Cole pulled this strategy is unknown, as Lacey was active at the plate, having driven out two singles in three times up.

Weber drew a base on balls in the ninth and advanced by degrees and stole home. The rally enticed the crowd with the hopes of an eleventh hour rally, and the team was likewise effected, but two had gone to heaven already and Goodman fouled out.

The Port Atkinson come here next Sunday. Wednesday the Cards meet the Fairies at Beloit. Unless Cole and Langdon strengthen from that of yesterday, the 1917 Memorial Day slaughter at Beloit will be worse for the Cards than the battle of Gettysburg was for the confederacy.

ARRANGE EXERCISES FOR MEMORIAL DAY

PARADE TO ASSEMBLE IN MORN-ING FOR MARCH TO CEME-TERY FOR MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES.

REV. LEWIS TO SPEAK

Committee in Charge Has Planned Interesting Patriotic Exercises for the Afternoon.

In order that their employees may take part in the exercises and that Memorial Day may be observed in a thoroughly patriotic manner, all dry goods and grocery stores will be closed throughout the day. Clothing and shoe dealers have agreed to close their shops at noon Wednesday.

Provided the weather man lends his assistance, the celebration of Memorial Day in Janesville will this year be a greater event and will carry more patriotic significance than it has for many years. Elaborate programs have been prepared by the Memorial Day association committee in charge, and the active co-operation of a number of societies has been secured to bring to pass all interest in the honoring of the city's dead warriors.

Starting with the special Memorial Day services held at the Baptist church yesterday, and at which there were a large attendance of veterans both the war of the rebellion and with Spain, the events lead up to the features of Decoration Day itself, when the graves of the dead will be decorated and when in fitting exercises at the Myers Theatre Wednesday afternoon, homage will be paid to the past defenders of the nation and the patriotic of the present given expression in singing and addresses.

Tomorrow afternoon the Boy Scouts of the city will decorate the graves of the soldiers of the Civil War and the cemetery, as their part in the observance of the day. Meeting at the Shelby House in Oak Hill at three o'clock Tuesday, the Scouts will begin the decoration of the graves of each soldier. Scouts are asked to bring a large knife or trowel.

The actual Memorial Day exercises will be started at half past eight Wednesday morning, when the various units in the parade will assemble at the East Side Odd Fellows Hall. The procession will be headed by the Boy Scouts Band, then will come Company M of the First Wisconsin Infantry; then the members of the Grand Army of the Republic; the Spanish War Veterans; the Women's Relief Corps. Following these bodies will come the auxiliaries and all other societies who desire to take part in the ceremonies of the day. The parade will be conducted over the Memorial Day services will be conducted over the graves of the soldiers.

In the afternoon further patriotic exercises will be held at the Myers Theatre. Assembly will take place at the G. A. R. hall at half past one for marching to the theatre for the program. This will be held at two o'clock by a prayer offered by the Reverend Truesdale of the United Brethren church. Following this S. C.
Burnham will read the proclamation of the President issued at Washington May 5, 1868, setting aside the thirtieth of May "for the purpose of atrewhing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion."

Singing by the school children under the direction of Miss Emily Sewell will make up another feature of the program. Charles Viney will deliver Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and a flag drill will be given by the Scouts. The address of the day will be delivered by the Reverend F. F.
Lewis of the Cargill Memorial Methodist Episcopal church. The exercises will close with the singing of America by the entire assemblage. Boy Scouts will act as ushers.

All preparations have been made for the exercises and a day of patriotism.
The arrangements have been in charge of J. F. Carle, C. H. Buchholz and C.
J. Schottel.

TWELVE ROAD CREWS AT WORK IN COUNTY

COUNTY'S HIGHWAY CONSTRUC-TION PROGRAM FOR THE YEAR
UNDER WAY, MOORE
REPORTS.

SPREAD OIL THIS WEEK

Work Started on Janesville-Beloit Road Near Afton—Beloit-Clinton and Madison Roads to Be Treated.

Highway construction for 1917 in Rock county is well under way with twelve crews employed, according to C. H. Moore, county engineer. The work is being done in the most progressive manner. The character of the work being done is excellent, however, fully up to the standard which has been maintained in previous years.
There are three new contractors operating in the county, all of whom have shown a commendable willingness to co-operate with the highway commissioner to secure the best results.

Before the season opened there was some talk of cutting down the construction program, especially with the view of curtailing the bridge building operations, but the high cost of material. Township boards have without exception, however, gone on record in favor of pushing through the work as planned, so there will be no cutting down of the program. The prevailing opinion has been that while materials are high there is no immediate prospect of their being any lower. Mr.
Moore has ordered 2,000 steel reinforcement bars for bridges and culverts and all plans are being made through this important part of the highway work as originally planned last fall.

Road building operations are being carried on in the following places:

In the town of Plymouth, the lower Footville road is being graded for a mile and a quarter stretch. There is also a mile stretch on the upper Foot-ville or Pleasant street road.

In the town of Porter, the west end of the Edgerton-Cooksville road is being graded for a mile and a quarter stretch. This work includes a 1,200 feet spillway of cement, which will cost $5,500.

East of Evansville and south on the Madison road, the work is under way.
Two miles of resurfacing will be done on the Madison road northwest of Evansville.

Work is being done on Newark and one mile line road in Turtle. One-fourth of a mile of cement road will be built on the Beloit-Clinton road, near the Turtle town hall.

A creek has been a piece of road on the Whitewater-Lima road in the town of Lima, and is now working on the Whitewater-Koshkonong road.

Working on the road from this week on the Janesville-Beloit road. A carload of oil has been sidetracked at Afton, and sand has already been distributed. The new oil storage tank erected in Janesville and the new filled with a carload of oil. It is probable that the Madison road, near Evansville, will be re-filled, as well as the road from the town of Milton to road later in the season. Mr. Moore has been successful in securing oil and sand shipments and expects that the work will not be hampered in any way on account of traffic conditions.

The county motor trucks are being used to advantage this year and have proved indispensable to the highway work. The trucks are being used to maintain the county system. Trailers have been equipped for use in hauling sand and gravel and a loading hopper has been fitted up, which has proved a great labor and time saver.

When the Guitar Arrived.

The advent of the English guitar in the eighteenth century caused the disappearance of bandore, poliphants and similar wire stringed instruments. or, rather, it supplanted them, following to the use of fingers, the English guitar, though smaller, could be used for accompanying the voice as well as for solo performances. The instrument, which had a decorative appearance, is frequently depicted in the portraiture of the eighteenth century. It was made in various sizes, two of the smaller "to be managed by young ladies from seven to ten years of age, the other by ladies of ten and upward."

In the botanical gardens of Rio de Janeiro there are monster trees from the Amazon country which overtop the lofty royal palms and reach a height of 200 feet.

An old black sock or stocking is the best thing to use when one is sponging off a garment of dark woolen goods with any cleaning fluid. There is no lint from it and it is absorbent and soft.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lestina Holloway Weaver.

In the death of Mrs. Lestina Holloway Weaver, which occurred yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs.
B. E. Wood, 349 Union avenue, a community has lost a woman who for over half a century has been a resident of considerable prominence. Mrs.
Weaver was born in New York, and came to Janesville in 1855, where she had a close relationship with the church and in her work as chaplain of the Women's Relief Corps she has been successful in her efforts to help the poor and to help wherever possible. Her charm of manner and her great industry in any undertaking which she assumed won for her many friends.

She was born September 5, 1842, in Watertown, New York, but came to Rock county when but a girl of eleven.
Thirteen years later, in 1855, she moved to Janesville and has since made her home here. In July, 1861, she was married in Magnolia Corners by the Reverend James Jamison to

FIFTY KINDS OF ACTIVITIES CHARGED IN WISCONSIN CITIES

(Special to the Gazette.) Janesville, Wis., May 28.—About fifty different kinds of activities are assessed license fees in the 223 cities of Wisconsin, and diverse practices are in vogue in various localities, according to an inquiry recently made by the municipal reference bureau of the University of Wisconsin Extension Division. Only five activities licensed in other states are regularly exempted here: dyehouses, clubs, steam engineers, public garages and slaughter houses.

Some of the activities, and things which are licensed are: billposters, milk and cream deliverers, distributors of medicine, plumbers, pool tables, runners and solicitors, entertainments, shows, exhibits, menageries, excavators of streets and sidewalks, storing of gunpowder, drugs, drain layers, drays, motorcycles, building within the fire limit, building movers, laying of water service pipes, theatres, opera houses, transient merchants, vehicles for transportation of persons, stands for popcorn, candy, lunch, second hand stores, making connections with sewers, making of sidewalks and autos for hire.

The common fee for moving picture houses in the state is $25 a year, but in some cities $10 a year is charged, and in others $50. Pawn and loan brokers pay fees ranging from $10 to $25 a year, peddlers and vendors pay from $5 a month to $50 a day in the different cities.

License fees for the selling of liquor range from $200 a year to $1,000 a year. In thirty-seven cities $200 is charged, three charge $250, twenty-seven $300, one $450, three $500 and one $1,000. Some fifty-five cities charge a regular fee of $10 a year from pharmacists selling liquors. Colby charges but $5, while Evansville charges $15 and Milwaukee $25. Superior adds $1 a year to the state fee of $2 for hotels and restaurants.

Milwaukee is the only city in the state which charges a fee from the drivers of public conveyances, and it assesses each driver $2. Six cities charge fees from $1 to $10 a year for the running of dance halls. Cudahy is connected with a wire room. Dogs are licensed in all cities with a fairly uniform fee of $1 or $2. Electricians are charged a fee in five cities of the state, and in three cities—Oconto, Ripon and Columbus.

Fortune tellers and clairvoyants are prohibited in many cities and in others they are charged as high as $10 a day. A fee of $4 a day is charged in La Crosse for the storing of gunpowder. Hay weighers are charged a fee of $100 a ton in a few cities; junk shops pay from $5 to $25 a year for licenses; merry-go-rounds are licensed in forty cities of the state and pay from $1 to $50 a day.

Scavengers pay license fees in nine cities, three cities tax tallyhoes, fifty cities charge fees for billboard tables, and thirty-eight of the eighty-four cities and towns charge a fee for the use of a public house. Circus license fees range from $25 a day in Ladysmith to $500 a day in Milwaukee.

The Man Without A Country

BY EDWARD EVERETT HALE

TO UNDERSTAND THE NEXT WORDS OF THE letter the nonprofessional reader should remember that after 1817 the position of every officer who had Nolan in charge was one of the greatest delicacy. The government had failed to renew the order of 1807 regarding him. What was a man to do? Should he let him go? What, then, if he were called to account by the department for violating the order of 1807? Should he keep him? What, then, if Nolan should be liberated some day and should bring an action for false imprisonment or kidnapping against every man who had had him in charge? The secretary always said, as they so often do at Washington, that there were no special orders to give and that we must act on our own judgment.

Here is the letter:

Levant, 22° 2' S. 83° 13' W.
Dear Fred—I try to find heart and life to tell you that it is all over with dear old Nolan. The doctor had been watching him very carefully and yesterday morning he came and told me that Nolan was not so well and had not left his stateroom, a thing I never remembered before. He had let the doctor come and see him as he lay there, the first time the doctor had been in the stateroom, and he said he should like to see me. Oh, dear, do you remember the mysteries we boys used to invent about his room in the old Intrepid days? Well, I went in and there he was, the poor fellow lay in his berth, smiling pleasantly as he gave me his hand, but looking very frail. I could not help a glance round, which showed me that a little shrine had been made of the box he was lying in. The stars and stripes were tried up above and around a picture of Washington, and he had painted a majestic eagle with lightning bolts from his back and his feet just clasping the whole globe, which his wings overshadowed. The dear old boy saw my glance and said, with a sad smile, "Here, you see, I have a country. And he pointed to the foot of his bed, where I had not seen before a great map of the United States as he had drawn it from memory and which he had there to look upon as he lay. Quaint, queer, old names were on it in large letters. "Oh, Danforth," he said, "I know I am dying. I cannot get home. Surely you will tell me something now. Stop, stop! Do not speak till I say what I am sure you know—that there is not in this ship, that there is not in America—God bless her!—a more loyal man than I. There cannot be a man who loves the old flag so dearly, who prays for it so often and hopes for it as I do. There are thirty-four stars in it now, Danforth. I thank God for that, though I do not know what their names are. There has never been one taken away. I thank God for that. I know by that that there has never been any successful Burr. Oh, Danforth, Danforth," he sighed out, "tell me—tell me something—tell me everything, Danforth, before I die!"

"Ingham, I swear to you that I felt like a monster that I had not told him everything before. Danger or no danger, delicacy or no delicacy, who was I that should have been acting the tyrant all this time over this dear, sainted old man who had years ago explained in his whole manhood's life the madness of a boy's treason?" "Mr. Nolan," said I, "I will tell you everything you ask about, only where shall I begin?"

"Oh, the blessed smile that crept over his white face! And he pressed my hand and said, 'God bless you! Tell me their names,' he said, and he pointed to the stars on the flag.
Well, I told him the names in as good order as I could, and he bade me trace down his beautiful map and draw them in as I best could with my pencil. He was wild with delight about Texas; told me how his brother died there. He marked a gold cross where he supposed his brother's grave was, and he had guessed at Texas. Then he was delighted as he saw California and Oregon. That, he said, he had suspected partly because he had never been permitted to land on that shore, though the ships were there so much. "And the men," said he, laughing, "brought off a good deal of beef and pork. They went back—beavers now far!—to ask about the Chesapeake and what was done to Barron for surrendering her to the Leopard, and whether Burr ever tried again, and he grew in his teeth with the only passion he showed. But in a moment that was over, and he said, 'God forgive me, for I am sure I forgive him.' Then he asked about the old war and settled down most quietly and happily to hear me tell in an hour the history of fifty years.

How I wished it had been somebody who knew something! I tell you, Ingham, it was a hard thing to condense the history of half a century into that talk with a sick man. And I do not now know what I told him of emigration and the means of it, of steamboats and railroads and telegraphs, of inventions and books and literature, of the colleges and West Point and the naval school, but with the queerest interruptions that ever you heard. You see, it was Robinson Crusoe sailing near the accumulated questions of fifty-six years.

I remember he asked all of a sudden who was president now, and when I told him he asked if Old Abe was General Benjamin Lincoln's son. He said he met old General Lincoln when he was quite a boy himself at some Indian treaty. I said no; that Old Abe was a Kentuckian, like himself, but I could not tell him of the family. He had worked up from the ranks. "Good for him!" cried Nolan. "I am glad of that. As I have brooded and wondered I have thought of the regular successions in the first families." I told him everything I could think of that would show the grandeur of his country and its prosperity.

And he drank it in and enjoyed it as I cannot tell you. He grew more and more silent, yet I never thought he was tired or faint. I gave him a glass of water, but he just wet his lips and told me not to go away. Then he asked me to bring the Presbyterian Book of Public Prayer, which lay there, and said, with a smile, that it would open at the right place, and so it did. There was his double red mark down the page, and I knelt down and read, and he repeated with me. "For ourselves and our country, O gracious God, we thank thee, that, when we stand in prayer, our minds are brought to thy holy laws, thou hast continued to us thy marvelous kindness," and so to the end of that thanksgiving. Then he turned to the end of the same book, and I read words more familiar to me. "Most heartily we beseech thee with thy favor to behold and bless thy servant, the president of the United States, and all others in authority," and the rest of the Eucharistic collect. "Danforth," said he, "I have repeated those prayers night and morning—it is now fifty-five years." And then he said he would go to sleep. He bent me down over him, and kissed me, and he said, "Look in my Bible, Danforth, when I am gone." And I went away.

But I had not thought it was the end. I thought he was tired and would sleep. I knew he was happy, and I wanted him to be alone.

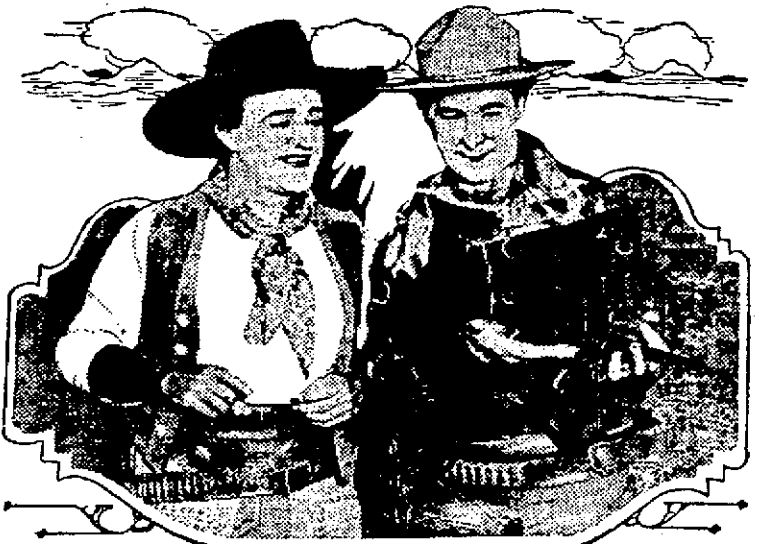

But in an hour when the doctor went in gently he found Nolan had breathed his life away with a smile. He had some papers pressed close to his lips. It was his father's badge of the Order of Cincinnati.

We looked in his Bible, and there was a slip of paper at the place where he had marked the text.

"They desire a country, even a heaven; wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; for he hath prepared for Dustin Farnum and William S. Hart in wild west costume.

These two red-blooded men are among the most popular male stars of the screen. Hart looks familiar in western make-up, but Farnum has rarely been seen in such togs on the screen.

William S. Hart, who is now touring the principal cities of the country and getting acquainted with film fans, is one of America's foremost photoplay actors. He is famous for his portrayal of the western ranchman, gambler and general all-around bad man. Yet, in nearly every drama his character concludes with considerable heart interest. Hence he is not only a woman's man, but a man's man.

He has had a notable career. Born in Newburg, N. Y., of English parents about thirty-five years ago, he moved with his parents while still a boy to South Dakota among the Sioux, and he was thus brought up on the great plains. Intended for a soldierly career, he decided to become an actor, and at nineteen made his debut with Daniel B. Bandmann in support of Mrs. Modjeska.

Later he became Messala in "Ben Hur" and Cash Hawkins in "The Squaw Man," Faversham's production. Then he starred in "The Virginian" and "The Barter." In 1914 Thomas H. Ince secured his name to a picture contract, and Triangle hasn't allowed this signature to get away from them since.

"Melissa of the Hills" will be the next vehicle for Mary Miles Minter as Melissa is the devoted young daughter of Jerro Stark, whose unappreciated duties are to instill the peace of God into the hearts of the feuding families of the neighborhood, for little or no remuneration.

Miss Corinne Griffith's next appearance with Earle Williams will be in "Lincoln by the Nine," a secret service play, now under way at the studios in Flatbush.

Kitty Gordon's next great picture, "The Beloved Adventuress," is scheduled for release during the month of July. It is said to contain realistic battle scenes.

World announces Montague Love's appearance in "The Brand of Satan," wherein he will be supported by Gerda Holmes and Evelyn Greeley. Mr. Love portrays a double personality.

Mary McLaren and Eddie Polo are featured in the picture, "Monday Madness," adapted from one of the "Whispering Smith" stories of Frank Spearman.

"The Upper Crust," an adaptation of Charles Sherman's novel, entitled "The Indiscretions of Molly," is being produced, starring Gail Kane.

Director R. A. Walsh can talk Sioux—a little. He learned it from an Indian movie actor, William Eagle Shirt.
